DIMENSION DATA AUSTRALIA ANNOUNCES SUCCESSFUL OAKTON ACQUISITION

Oakton and Dimension Data create 'formidable combination'

Sydney, Australia /Johannesburg, South Africa – 10 November 2014 –

Dimension Data Australia today announced the successful acquisition of technology and consulting services company Oakton.

In voting at the meeting of Oakton shareholders on 31 October, 99.46% of votes cast in person and by proxy were in favour of the AUD171 million acquisition, and the transaction was subsequently approved by the Victorian Supreme Court on 7 November.

Rodd Cunico, Dimension Data Australia CEO said, "The acquisition of Oakton aligns with our strategy to address the challenges our clients face as they transform to harness the opportunities of becoming digital enterprises. Oakton's top-end consulting capability, combined with Dimension Data's expertise across ICT infrastructure integration, cloud, and outsourcing services, enables us to create, deliver and manage end-to-end business solutions for our clients.

"With Oakton's 1,200-strong workforce and Dimension Data's 1,900 employees, we expand Dimension Data's presence in Australia by over 60%, and significantly broaden our skills and capabilities.

"Put simply, this is a game changer for the Australian market place."

Neil Wilson, Oakton CEO said Dimension Data and Oakton have a complementary value proposition and footprint and there would be no change in Oakton's current business strategy.

"Our partnership over the last eighteen months has been very successful. Being part of the same company, we can further accelerate our joint go-to-market positioning and market share acquisition opportunities. I'm looking forward to working with Dimension Data to continue driving local innovation in order to address our client's current and future business challenges. By being at the table together, the thinking gets connected and opens up more strategic opportunities to transform the way our clients do business."
